Re: Skywise

Source: http://sci.tech−archive.net/Archive/sci.geo.geology/2006−11/msg00160.html

- From: "Carsten Troelsgaard" <carsten.troelsgaard@xxxxxxx>
- Date: Tue, 28 Nov 2006 10:20:06 +0100

"Carsten Troelsgaard" <carsten.troelsgaard@xxxxxxx> skrev i en meddelelse news:456af12f$0$20298$edfadb0f@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

> "George" <george@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> skrev i en meddelelse > news:eObah.10084$k6.7925@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx
>
> snip
>
>> Whatever kind of bird it was, it sure had a >> beautiful, melodious song.
>> I'm not too familiar with European >> songbirds, so I couldn't help you >> identify it. We have a lot of mockingbirds >> here. One in particular >> that seems to come back to my yard every >> year for the past three or >> four years has learned how to mock eastern >> blue jays, a truck backing >> up (beep, beep, beep...), a telephone ringing, >> and a police siren (woo, >> woo, woo..). That last one is very funny to >> hear coming from a bird.
>> I was outside with my grandsons one day >> and told them about it, and >> they didn't believe me. But the bird was on >> cue and started his siren >> call, and they just thought that was the >> coolest thing they'd ever >> heard a bird do. Keep up the good work with >> the video.
>
> I found out what kind of bird's on the video (local name > kær−sanger). It > has the same way of imitating other birds, but not as > apparantly > obknoxious as your mockingbird :o)

Ah yes. A warbbler. That makes sense.

> I've felt pushed to upload a couple of holiday−strips of a far worse > quality than they can bear, but to give you a hint of a joyful time,