

Re: Yesterday we received the great news that the Hunting Bill will be reintroduced to the Commons next week.

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.agriculture.poultry/2004-09/0392.html>

From: Nimrod (gordonbp1_at_yahoo.invalid)

Date: 09/16/04

Date: Thu, 16 Sep 2004 09:24:54 +0100

"Martin Willett" <ignoredmailbox@ntlworld.com> wrote in message news:2qt06eF131p4jU1@uni-berlin.de...

> The commons has expressed its view, yet again, by a huge majority.

> It's time to face up to the reality: you lost.

On a bill, which by Alun Michaels OWN ADMISSION on Radio 4 yesterday was re-introduced NOT as an Animal Welfare bill, but as a means of "managing the Labour Party". This bill has consequently become completely morally bankrupt, those who voted for it are similarly morally bankrupt, and have also lost the right to be called "Right Honourable" as they are NOT right, and are NOT honourable. To deprive a significant minority of their way of life purely to "manage the Labour Party" is morally and ethically indefensible when there are so many more pressing issues abounding. If you did a survey of all the population and asked the question "Do you ever think about hunting" I bet 99% of the population would answer "NEVER". The ONLY people to whom this issue matters is the 400 or so bigoted and ignorant labour MPs, the 10,000 or so active antis and the 500,000 who practice and support it.

This is NO basis for any sort of legislation, and is why, in the end, it will fail.