To Mary-Jill-and the rest,

This Shiver-Me-Timbers guy is a well known troll on other groups. I had an argument with him over his trolling on other groups. Now he is monitoring the other groups I am on to see when I post. He is in Canada as best as I can tell and his ISP does not respond to complaints.

He has no real interest in chickens. He only posted his argumentative "Do we really need a FAQ" post as flame bait for me. I had previously posted a note to Jill that a FAQ might be a good idea. He jumped on that as a source of controversy.

He changes his fake email address frequently so don't be surprised if he posts something and suddenly a bunch of other posts appear all with fake email addresses – all in support of his first post.

TO Shiver, squiggles, or whatever you call yourself:

I know you are reading this so read carefully. I started this group and most of the folks here already know that. Apparently you don't. I don't post very frequently, but I did make up the original rules for this group. That was back in 1995 or so. So yes, I'm allowed to post them on occasion.

I have been actively raising and studying poultry for over 25 years now. Can you say the same Squiggles? Tell us, Squiggles, how many live chickens do you own? How many eggs does a chicken lay in a day? Have you even "Seen" a live chicken in person before?

Squiggles/shiver, take this as good advice. Go back to the hole from which you came. The folks in this group are far less tolerant of your antics than other groups. You won't be very happy here.

Dennis.
