

Introducing new chickens

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.agriculture.poultry/2005-06/msg00099.html>

- From: "Martyn" <Bill@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Mon, 20 Jun 2005 10:59:28 +0100
-

Hi again.

I haven't been around this group for a while, and I know this must be a subject that gets raised regularly, but I want some advice on how to introduce new girls to my existing ones.

I currently have 3 (used to be 4) ex-battery chickens. I've had them a year (exactly) and, apart from the one with the runny bum, they're doing very well, and still laying.

I'm about to get another 3.

Knowing the dreadful state my three were in a year ago I want to be able to introduce the new ones without too much added trauma.

Any suggestions please.

Martyn

.

- Follow-Ups:
 - ◆ Re: Introducing new chickens
 - ◇ From: Jill.
- Prev by Date: Re: Hello, and group of roosters
- Next by Date: Re: Introducing new chickens
- Previous by thread: Re: Hello, and group of roosters
- Next by thread: Re: Introducing new chickens
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread