

turkens?

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.agriculture.poultry/2005-09/msg00275.html>

---

- From: "-L." <gentleboa@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: 28 Sep 2005 10:49:42 -0700
-

I was reading another thread and came cross mention of turkens – did a little research and discovered they are really chickens. But my dumb question is this: does the meat taste any different from a chicken?

Are there other foul that are easy to raise that make good meat animals? I mean, other than chickens, turkeys, ducks, and game hens? What about pheasant? Are they easy to raise and/or worth the effort?

The reason I am asking is that we are looking into animal husbandry of different sorts, for the future (raise our own meat and eggs – primarily rabbits and chickens but would eventually diversify).

TIA for any info.

-L.

.

---

- Follow-Ups:
  - ◆ Re: turkens?
    - ◇ From: pammyT
  - ◆ Re: turkens?
    - ◇ From: pammyT
  - ◆ Re: turkens?
    - ◇ From: OmManiPadmeOmelet
- Prev by Date: Re: Death from above!
- Next by Date: Re: Death from above!
- Previous by thread: Dancing Chicken Road Troupe
- Next by thread: Re: turkens?
- Index(es):
  - ◆ Date
  - ◆ Thread