

Re: Forum for rational scientific debate?

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.anthropology.paleo/2006-06/msg00395.html>

---

- From: richardparker01@xxxxxxxxxx
  - Date: 25 Jun 2006 18:27:25 -0700
-

rmacfarl wrote:

Jois wrote

"MClark" <men@xxxxxxxx> wrote in message

...

Without Mario, life would be alot less entertaining:

"Today we are nothing like primates."

— Mario 10/31/2005

You're gonna have to get up alot earlier in the morning
if you hope to comtete with that kind of writing, mister.

Geeze, I haven't read the sig files in a while:

"I don't pretend [to be a world class evolutionary theorist] either.
(I don't need to. I let my content speak for me on this point.)"

— Jim McGinn, 17-Feb-2003.

(It does.)

Ross Macfarlane :-)

Come back, Algis! All is forgiven!

Re: Forum for rational scientific debate?

— MClark, 03 Dec 2005

This is 'hugely entertaining' stuff, but rational debate, no.

Sounds more like – "I sez to 'im, and she sez to me, so I sez back, so 'e sez.... and we all pick on someone whose English is not quite as wonderful as our American/Australian.

Good stuff – keep it up. Helps to make SAP such a wonderful contributor to the science of Paleoanthro–apology.

regards

Richard

.