

Re: Kirsten Seaver's Vinland Map book– first thoughts

Source: <http://sci.tech–archive.net/Archive/sci.archaeology/2004–07/2550.html>

From: Inger E Johansson (inger_e.johansson_at_notelia.com)

Date: 07/29/04

Date: Thu, 29 Jul 2004 07:40:28 GMT

David B,

how about reading all I wrote – I wrote that someone sent an url [which I followed btw and ended up in a long academic article] I didn't had it at hand thus I said that there was an article in Populär Arkelogi nr 2 [which was edited AFTER I downloaded the other article. I noted that as well]. You proven once again that you don't read what's said but what you prefer to have been said. That my dear Watson isn't the same!

What you and the naysayer think of Per Lillieström or not think about him doesn't have anything at all to do with the url someone sent to the group– but of course that might be a problem for those who normally don't read all text in an url nor follow the threads and references given in the 'first' page of the url.

Better do your homework David B. Learn how to follow up, learn how to valuate and above all learn to read what's said not what you wick had been said.

Inger E

"David B" <tronospamchos@tesco.net> skrev i meddelandet news:IE2Oc.60$tW2.11@newsfe1–gui.ntli.net...

> David B. wrote in message ...

>>

> > I see from your latest message you are referring to the recent article by

> > Per Lillieström. He does not have a high reputation at the moment...

>

> In fact, given that his article is based on the misconception that

> Jacqueline Olin's largely discredited research was "new" and important

> ("Vinlandskartan ritades under kyrkomötet i Basel 1431–1449"– I don't think > so) it seems his reputation just sank a little lower.

>

> David B.

>

>