Re: Vinland Map and New Math

Source: http://sci.tech−archive.net/Archive/sci.archaeology/2005−03/0225.html

---

From: JMB (jmb_at_utvinternet.ie)
Date: 03/01/05

Date: Tue, 1 Mar 2005 14:02:37 −0000

"Alan Crozier" <name1.name2@telia.com> wrote in message
news:YGZUd.18690$d5.143762@newsb.telia.net...
> "JMB" <jmb@utvinternet.ie> wrote in message
> news:newscache$cq6pci$dti$1@weblab.ucd.ie...
>> "I.E_Johansson" <inger_e.johansson@telia.com> wrote in message >> news:xHYUd.18687$d5.143880@newsb.telia.net...
>> >
>> > "Renia" <renia@DELETEotenet.gr> skrev i meddelandet
>> > news:d01hve$p12$2@newsmaster.pub.dc.hol.net...
>> >> I.E_Johansson wrote:
>> >> > "Renia" <renia@DELETEotenet.gr> skrev i meddelandet
>> >> > news:d00e7t$pq9$3@newsmaster.pub.dc.hol.net...
>> >> >
>> >> >>Inger, restoration is spellt restoration. Not restauration, which is > to >> >> >>do with restaraurants (sort of). That's why they're talking about >> >> >>hamburgers.
>> >> >
>> >> >
>> >> > You and they know of my spelling problems due to my dyslexia. I take > it >> > that >> >> > they know that a spelling program unfortunatly gives ok when a word >> > exist.
>> >> > Childish of them. Don't you agree.
>> >>
>> >> Unfortunately, the word "restauration" doesn't exist, so your >> >> spellchecker should have caught that. I'm sure you have a sense of >> >> humour, Inger. Let them have some fun. You could, too.
>> >
>> > Well Renia the word 'restauration' do exist. Or don't you believe The >> > Times >> > knows which words exist or which doesn't? "Restauration is much more >> > the