Any way to sack off-topic posts?

Or can you show us how a planet that wasn't discovered until the 20th century is vital to archaeology?

Well, it might be considered, especially by those prepared to think outside the box, that the 20th century is an archaeological site, and as such can be mined for all

I write as one seeking redemption because I was duped by my peers into believing the planet properties of Pluto.

And the definition of archaeology is:
"the scientific study of historic or prehistoric peoples and their cultures by analysis of their artifacts, inscriptions, monuments, and other such remains, esp.
those that have been excavated. "

And do you teach your granny to suck eggs as a general rule?

Well, my grandmamma choked to death on an Ostrich egg, ignoring my proffered advice to use an Ostrich spoon and egg topper, which only goes to prove "there's always something new to learn."
Silly old people think they know everything!
