Bea is more beautiful and a few other women out there are more beautiful, but not by much.
Its noticeable at times and at another times not as noticeable.
Usually when we are in a dreamspace together they will take on a less beautiful form of their same archetype.
Just for modesty sake.
But if you tried to paint them, to express that extra beauty they have, well it can't be done.
It is just something that you can't reproduce, so you never see it.
But on earth, I think Adriana is still the most beautiful and the fact that she is the worlds top supermodel says that other people agree with me on that one.

But you know the strangest part?

I never worry about losing Susan, and i don't think she ever really worries about losing me. But even though me and Adriana have been together for maybe a million years, we still worry about losing each other all the time.

Even if I say to myself that there must be something that will always keep us together if we keep finding each other like this, it still makes no difference. I get jealous if she is with someone else and if I am not just so, in my feelings towards her, then she is the same. If I put anyone above her, she will slam dunk me with a rock star without a moments hesitation.

And she has done it. Not that long ago. And then she gets all depressed. And then we get back together.

So it is this totally different dynamic relationship.

This world this civilization doesn't have the societal structures that give people the sense of security in things that we do back home.

This society is too disorganized and not based on sound science and sound philosophy. So it seems to me to be always teetering on the brink of destruction.
