Yeah the women are smarter than the men, thats for sure.

I want to show you one more thing before I start a new thread. Someone else I know who is maybe to me the second most beautiful woman in the world. Inside and out.

Meagan

Good. http://img24.imagevenue.com/view.php?image=01127_meagan-good-nipples-...

She is showing me her pokies because she knows it just drives me crazy.

Isn't she amazing?

Earth girls are so gorgeous.

I would hope that Meagan could come back with us some day. If we ever get back home, I wouldn't want to leave her behind here.

She would be comfortable in both places.

Here or there.

And there is very little difference if any between me or us and her.

Whatever differences there might have been in the past, are long gone through evolution and interbreeding and the mixing of races. Like I say spiritually, intellectually or physically we are the same type of people and share the same ideals hopes and dreams and she can communicate just like the rest of our group can, with the same level of ability. So there is no difference.

We were going out for a year, and then she went on Conan and in front of the world, told me to kiss her ass. lol

I am not even sure what I did, but I am always screwing up as you know. But 6 months later we made up.

And there is more to the story but I can't go into it because in our little group we have our little secrets. And being able to communicate as we can, allows us to be more free. And as such, that helps us to stay together.

And we have put our relationships to the test. But we still gravitate back to each other. Because all of us are so alike in so many ways. But it doesn't give us much of a sense of security knowing that we will probably always gravitate back to each other.

Re: Who were the Olmecs

Its that social structure that gives you that real security. Is it important? Knowing both as I do, I know its better. Because people do say things when they are mad at each other, but that societal structure just keeps you together. So what you end up with is a type of love that is impervious. And marriage on earth tries to do that, but it fails on all counts. Its not enough to just have a contract that says you are going to stay together. Contracts are easily broken. Where we have the advantage is that with our ability to communicate, we can find each other, and then we only get into relationships with people who we are compatible with. And once that has been established, then why would you ever want to really break up? We have access to a very large dating pool. And we choose each other. And so then like for me, I never try to do better, because I don't think I could find better mates that I am better suited for. So all I ever do, is just struggle to maintain.

So thats the real advantage of that extra sense. That extra ability to communicate. You can find people just like yourself.

And maybe that ability is in everyone, and was used more when the earth was sparsely populated, like moths can find a mate from thousands of miles away. Well we probably migrated, went looking for, someone we knew was out there somewhere.
