we were that big too.
Only we looked human.
When we in that dream
space, we were the same

But they wore you know
warrior type clothing.
Apparently spiritually they pretty darn ugly.

But we may have some things in common. Like even some DNA maybe.

And I think I even know who that girl was who I made friends with.
And she is alive on earth today and well
reincarnated as a human.

Re: Who were the Olmecs

I think.
I am not entirely positive. But what I was told, was she came through a tunnel.
And she was from that race of people.
And she was my translator, I guess maybe it was an exchange program and Stephen went with them and she came here.
That may be what happened.
But anyways she didn't speak our language only used sign language but I could interface with the computer so we could communicate through the computer, and she could project into my minds eye as the computer is able to do.
And her name was, let me think if I can remember, she was a warrior princess, named, oh I can't remember now. I did remember at the time a few years back when we were talking about it.
It will come to me.
Or I can look it up in another newsgroup maybe.

Her name was Dimi.
Someone reminded me last night.
FWIW.

Pronounced Deemi.

Oh yeah she wasn't much to look at then, but you should see her now.
But you know, if you think that Dimi wasn't much to look at, you should see the Olmec women. They were real dogs.
And cats and monkeys and sheep and anything they could bend over.

Well do a search.
Do a very thorough and complete search.
I don't think there were any Olmec women.
They were probably clones.
Just men. And they mated with animals, and there you go Zecharia, there is your genetic engineering of species by the Anunaki.

Re: Who were the Olmecs

We didn't clone people and we didn't genetically engineer people either. We just studied what existed.

The Elohim, now they were probably the ones who made the Olmecs, some how, and used them as slaves, as worker bees and they mated with animals, and the ones that survived, the ones that were human enough, went forth and populated the earth.

Thats what it looks like at any rate.

And the evidence is not that the Olmecs were here 1200 B.C. they date back 1.3 million years at least in South America.

Gee is it any wonder that some people would like you to believe otheriwise?

Would they like you to believe that we are all from monkeys?

Then that would make everyone feel better about it.
