Ridem cowboy.

So glaciation, flooding, those are effective ways to destroy a civilization. Even if they are underground, and it removes a lot of the evidence.

But a lot of evidence remains in the rock.

And Peru, is such an amazing place to find evidence.

And so you see there are a whole range of types of people, in software, from different parts of the universe, different races, then they are inhabiting different species of man.

And so then there is the computer program operating system to run all that, and then there is a computer system to run the animals.

A more rudimentary system, but the conscious computer itself, we can communicate with it.

It is just that the one that runs the animals, has a different perspective than the one which runs man.

So you end up with this conflict between mans spiritual nature and man's animal nature.

And we have to coexist.

At least while we are here we do.

So it is a balancing act of a sort, and we get the benefits of animalistic pleasures, and the joys of higher intellect.
