And so well it still isn't clear to me what happened, because when I phoned home the first time, my dad answered the phone. But then after that, Chupee said that I had woken him up. And it wasn't until we got through to my mom, that everyone started getting along again. I wasn't warring with my dad, he was glad to see me, but then I did get flack for what happened to Stephen. And so who knows. Maybe Michael came to the rescue and crashed at Roswell. That's the story that will probably get told but I think it was me David Corrine and Jackie who crashed from the moon. And there was a lot of activity after that. Disks flew over Washington and the whole nine yards. So people out there knew there was a problem and they were just monitoring the situation. We ended up having to fix it ourselves, but they may have set up the cold war, to prevent nuclear winter. It's probably a really interesting story if we could just get some of the details, but everything is classified.

But I can tell you what I think. And that is that the disks didn't fly over Washington, after Roswell. So the problem was not totally unobserved by Universal command.

Re: Nefertiti's lovely elongated head

They flew over Washington, just before I was reincarnated, so that was just there way of ensuring that I wouldn't be toasted as soon as I was born.

A show of force as it were.

All the hard work would have been done already right? And then it would be, ok, don't tell him we are watching, lets see what he does. And then well the rest is history because I wasn't alone, we have a large crew. 2 crews actually one from Mars.

So then the disks over Washington, were not necessarily just for my benefit, because I wasn't born until a few years later, they must have been for the crew, many of who reincarnated at that time. Or around that time frame.

Most of the work was done, and the world was in stalemate, before I was born.

But those were interesting times. At any moment we were told we could end up as a shadow on a wall of some radioactive wasteland. Duck and cover. And people acted like well if it happens it happens. And yeah thousands and thousands of nuclear warheads pointing at everyone on all sides. Watch Dr. Strangelove, that was a movie made at that time.

What would be nice is if the government would give us more details, because it really doesn't matter at this point.

There is a large alien head sitting on the moon for all to see. Whats the difference?

Someone who thinks he could still get in trouble because so far he hasn't got into trouble and if people knew he might get into trouble?

I don't think so.
