

Psychopathic, Anti-Social, and Narcissistic Personality Disorders

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.archaeology/2007-12/msg01121.html>

---

- From: Samra <minoanatlantis@xxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Sat, 29 Dec 2007 10:24:39 -0800 (PST)
-

Anyone that unconscionably creates chaos in order to solicit attention is a good candidate for one of these disorders. The key to understanding their true nature is to realize that they consider themselves to be the center of the universe. The rest of us are merely objects or things that fill their observable reality. They consider us as potential food to satisfy whatever their selfish desires are.

They tend to take residence in places that feed them well. Those that respond to their incitements of anger (or sympathy) are unintentionally laying out a plate of delicacies (attention) that they thrive on. They tend to move on when they are no longer fed what they desire. Even one word of angry or critical response is equivalent to giving them a plate of ice cream to savor on.

It is estimated that something like 3% of humanity has some form of these personality disorders. A good place to start in understanding this psychological phenomenon is with the classic work by Dr. Robert Hare – "Without Conscience: The Disturbing World of the Psychopaths among Us".

Here's a link to his site:

<http://www.hare.org/>

Best Regards,

W. Sheppard Baird

<http://www.minoanatlantis.com>

.