

Re: Pyramids in Sudan is a trivial topic but Qumran Archaeology has world-shaking implications for Christian Origins

Re: Pyramids in Sudan is a trivial topic but Qumran Archaeology has world-shaking implications for Christian Origins

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.archaeology/2008-04/msg00647.html>

- From: David <pchristainsen@xxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Mon, 28 Apr 2008 15:09:56 -0700 (PDT)
-

On Apr 28, 6:03 pm, Peter Alaca <p.al...@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

David wrote: on, 28/04/2008 23:56:

On Apr 28, 5:34 pm, Peter Alaca <p.al...@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

...

I don't know. His current strategy seems to be flooding, to dominate the group. He started the current flooding without an obvious trigger (at least to me).

...

You are off your rocker; sci.arch can't be flooded or dominated – it is too big and very high activity.

No it isn't. Otherwise it would be impossible for you to post a quarter of the threads. You are destroying this group, which makes your claim that you are archaeology minded very implausible. If you have, you should back down.

BTW you are so wrapped up in yourself you failed to note that Tom McDonald decided to show me some respect. He said that dirt archaeology fascinates him and clearly has positive feelings for his former teacher, Gary Feinman.

So what?

Re: Pyramids in Sudan is a trivial topic but Qumran Archaeology has world-shaking implications for Christian Origins

Re: Pyramids in Sudan is a trivial topic but Qumran Archaeology has world-shaking implications for Christian Origins

Name dropping will not help you.

You fail to realize that you yourself are at the heart of the problem. Sci.arch will be restored to balance when you stop responding to me.

d.c.

.

Re: Pyramids in Sudan is a trivial topic but Qumran Archaeology has world-shaking implications fo2Christia