I'd suggest that it would be a very good idea to start having someone there with you with a video camera.....both for your protection and also, it is amazing how many loud bullies back off when they are being recorded.

I once was in a series of confrontations....with a really nasty guy. When I started recording the meetings, he first tried to bluster and stop us recording, but when we told him that every time we met, we were going to record it and show others.....he suddenly stopped coming around.
