I hope the guy that sent me the DELL machine is reading this, I say thank you for it, with the SONY monitor on it it is nice. Plus it could not have gotten here at a better time. I turned on the aged Packard Bell this am to transfer files from it and apon boot up, the motherboard fried some chips (but no fish). So I transfer the hard drive to the 2nd drive hookup and transfered all the files to a folder on the main one and deleted all the folders and files left over.

I will now take it apart and store away the good parts.

If you'll contact me again I want to give you something as a thank you but need your address.

In the mean time I'm getting ready for the corner tonight, if the light overcast doesn't get any worst.
