The last two nights have been a tiny bit slow, but those coming over where good ones to talk too. A lot where asking about the MARS show later this month.

Helped one older lady see the moon from her wheelchair early friday night.

Tonight before the moon came up was showing off Jupiter.

Then just about 30 mins before closing time tonight, a white car sped pass and 3 raw eggs came flying out, I had to pack up and get home fast, got a pan of hot water with dish soap in it and totaly washed down the rockerbox,

I then had to remove one side of the OTA holder box, removed the side with the baring on it and do a full wash of it and carefully wash/wipe the inside of the ota box. I'm going to leave it open and see if I can get a cheap can of spray paint and paint the ota inside it. This deadlines the scope for a few days.

I was just luck I didn't have the scope facing west, the eggs would have gone down the tube then. Oh ya, it was a buch of high school aged punks in the car. To bad I didn't get a plate number from the car.
