The ID in question here is just New Earth Creationism by fundamentalists disguised to try to sneak it into public schools as some kind of secular science.

Absolutely. As an interesting addition to the problem, the Dover school board superintendent seems a bit, uhm, open-minded. In "a deposition taken January 3, 2005, Dover Superintendent Nilsen suggested that the "master intellect" described in an ID textbook might also be an alien." (Quoted from Pat Shipman's article in American Scientist @ <http://www.americanscientist.org/template/AssetDetail/assetid/47366?&print=yes>) If that bit is true, it's a scary, scary bit.
