AM,

Rather than respond further to an already heated discussion, which is getting nowhere, I do have one last thing to say:

The solution is quite simple: If you don't like the educational system, you do have the option to homeschool the kids yourself. More and more parents are doing it these days and, although it has some serious drawbacks unless done properly, there are some cases where homeschooling has been highly successful.

Before I took up teaching after being fed up with industry, I relearned the sciences using some excellent homeschooling texts myself. They more than adequately prepared me for the teaching tests that are required in many states before one can teach.

I know it's too late now, but homeschooling would have avoided the fights and other social issues and you could have overseen the best education your child could have because it was done by you.

In your case, it looks like your children turned out ok so it wasn't necessary, but I do recommend it as a feasible option these days when parents can't seem to find their place in the system.

Now tell me how is that wrong on his part ??

Rules are rules. All schools have a discipline policy and there are two sides to every story. Perhaps there's more to the story coming from the other side of the coin....

Wow.... Someone physically attacks another in a sneak attack, which EVEN the school admitted what the attacker did, and yet you want more proof. Sheesh....

You have almost the same ideals as said teachers.
You have more of a problem because my kid won the fight, rather than with the one who started it.
(and who learned a painful lesson)

If you or anyone physically attacked me, I WILL defend myself, whats wrong with that ?

Again, you are conveying your side. If both parties submitted their version of what happened, only then could the light be properly shared.

Sorry, I cant get the other side here to talk to you.

BTW are you really that naive that both sides will submit the same story ??? Seriously ??? Even the school in this case agreed with my sons version. (too many witnesses.)

You appear to have a bias against teachers in general, unfortunately all too common these days.

IF it's all to common these days, might the people saying it possibly be RIGHT ?

Or will you blindly just defend your profession ?
You make it sound like teachers are beyond reproof.....
(you refuse to see any merits from the peoples objections)

Re: Asians to dominate space too?

Teachers are there to teach the skills in life, to be productive in society. NOT to have to like others.
Our schools systems are catering to the lowest common denominator pure and simple.

And it's showing in our national scores.....

My friend actually got arrested for this exact thing.
(disciplined his kid, who called 911)

Yes, it happened to my neighbors also.

And this is OK to you ???
Really ????

Corporal punishment has been an accepted manner of discipline for thousands of years. And it WORKS when used properly !

I guess it is ok to you, for a teacher to try and undermine parental authority

No, but after abuses of the past where too many fathers took their daily frustrations out on the children, it's no wonder those authorities above

beyond the parental kind exercise greater control.

Ahhhhh your true colors come out at last...

You feel that the schools, and or govt are a higher authority over parents in controlling their children.
How dead wrong you are.

No govt should have any say in how a child is brought up by their parents as long as laws are not broken.

Are you really for kid's to be taught that they are supposed to listen to teachers or govt over their own parents ??

BTW you believe in socialism, or communism ??

You would find or fund a way, if the issues were that important to you,

or

send you child to a public school well known for having little/no problems

(you would have to do some research and "shop around"). It still costs

to go to a public school outside of your area, but still not as much as private schools in general.

No, I got by. I live in a house with almost 10,000 books in it and in regards to history in particular, was able to help both kid's out a lot. Granted around 5,000 are on aviation, but the rest are history, art, etc...

(I do have a complete set of Dickens from the late 1800's :)

You REALLY need proof of the liberal bias of the NEA ????
You must not get out much.....

Liberal bias by whose account? Yours, the neighbors? Depends on how you look at it. I, for one, used to work without a union before I went into teaching and vowed that I would never do it again due to serious management/

employee problems. You call it "bias", I call it "protection".

Now you are truly showing your liberal ideals here.

(that or a serious set of blinders)

The NEA has been outspoken with political issues, which is not their job IMHO.

But how does one get protection from a liberal ideology ??

No, I wouldn't go that far, but some of the current policies in effect, started by the current administration, are in serious error.

And who just scolded me for not providing facts here ????

Congratulations. My nephew just returned from that part of the world also.

He did well too.

Congratulations !!!!!!!!!!! My heart goes out always for all those kid's doing an incredibly hard job.

And thank your nephew, he is a good man !!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Older son makes several hundred grand a year now, just moved to San Fransisco. He is only 24

Hmmm, must be an awfully young doctor, but then again some serious doubts there.

No gifted programmer (5 yrs deans list R.I.T.) Has his own company.
(200k per year now)

BTW what do your kid's do ???

Follow the rules/ laws and trouble should remain at bay. That goes for any law abiding citizen.

You've said nothing that removes my doubt cloud from your words.

Wil

Well, I have no doubts about you.

The liberal slant is oblivious for all to see.
I just hope you dont impart that slant to your students.
Children need a factual account of history, and a solid background in math, science, and strong grasp of the English language. They need an exposure to the arts, of ALL kinds, and not a teachers interpretation.
NOT that a kid cant dislike bobby because he has two dad's.
(we ALL have a right to dislike anyone we want !)

My real problem with our education system can be directly shown by how a lot of people in our govt think.

The PC speech that has taken hold is an example of that.
We have already trampled the first amendment in the name of ideology. (when 2nd amendment is gone, so are we.....)
When saying certain words can get you prosecuted, there is something wrong with the system as it is no longer protecting free speech.
Last time I remembered, "sticks and stones can break my bones, but words can never hurt me"

What happened ?
