Ken,

Your sentiments remind me of my own when I was shopping for a first scope. Almost against the electronics for sake of becoming dependent.

I have an XT-8 classic and like it very much. I must admit though that if I were buying another one, I would fork over the extra cash and buy the intelligent model. You will learn the skies pretty good and once you realize that you can do it (been there, bought the T-shirt), will probably wish (like me) that you had the one with the brain (if for no other reason), for the sake of convenience. Not to mention when time is short or when the skeeters are so thick it makes the moon twinkle....
