The battle is between Darkness and Light.

Darkness = ignorance and fear.

Light = wisdom and honesty.

The battle has been going on since mankind stood up and started walking on two legs.

Even if the Earth should be suffused with Light, so that unity and harmony ruled here, eventually emissaries from other civilizations might arrive. Some might carry the proverbial 'olive branch'. Some might be dark civilizations, and the battle might begin again.

Perhaps nature requires both darkness and light, in vague analogy to the way it requires positive and negative charge.

Perhaps it is time to give Light a chance here on this planet. We have had plenty of Darkness.

Just some thoughts,
Rob
