Once upon
a time, hundreds of

there was an emperor.
And there was also a man who came up with an idea.
This man
calculated,
that he can build a train
that runs
near a river at 500
kilometers
per hour.
This
was hundreds of years ago.
When the idea was proposed to the emperor, he said: But nothing can

than a horse, not even birds,
that is not possible,
and he told all
the people
in the room:
"There will not be a train running through this city at 500
kilometers
per hour!" He looked around at
the people
in the room
after he said that. All the people were frozen and
silent.
The
emperor
walked out of the room,
and the decision was final.

How did this train
work, back then, they didn't have electric power, they didn't have
engines that ran on gasoline.

Re: The instant solution to global warming, zero energy (no yeah right, hydrogen combustion)

A piece of cake.
Believe it or
not. A thing
that runs
without combustion,
without a large
engine,
any form of steam or smoke. Not a problem.

We came from times when there was no electricity, when there was no gasoline engine. Things were mechanical. There were no discos. But there were a lot of wars. Territory and territorial disputes were the priority of rulers.
Invasion of Tatars was the fear. Life was hard and very religious. Plague, diseases, witchburning, robbings, killings, slavery, people were taken and enslaved, chained to row warships in Italy.
Just 300 years ago, 300 women in France were burned
as witches, the people claimed those women turned into wolves at night, they gathered in secret, and they
were burned out superstition. And the King was fare, and wanted fairness, but his people killed for him.

The same is seen today, as 1st Lt. Ehren Watada was arrested for making contempt toward the President.

He spoke of the president and of the Iraq war, he spoke of general concerns. Those making Republican concerns are not jailed. Ehren received 6–8 years in jail, arrested November of 2006 for making contempt, declared a deserter in January of 2007.

It is really finding oneself in the past, people are closed, and one finds ancient secrets within, I am not talking about you, but finding unbelievable ancient madness
among the people, they yell to burn witches, Bush is from this crowd. Nobody knew how barbaric America was. Ok, in a sense world war II was not that long ago, there were monstrocities in Europe that now thinks it is so much more ahead in terms of a civilized place, that keeps itself from barbarism, to not allow mixing of religion with governments, and to not ban smoking and stuff. Discos didn't go away in Europe, the sexual revolution did not die (except in religious places like in Catholic Spain, where religion has grown, as

Re: The instant solution to global warming, zero energy (no yeah right, hydrogen combustion)

Re: The instant solution to global warming, zero energy (no yeah right, hydrogen combustion)

Catholic schools now mix boys and girls, there is a mean spirit of revenge by nuns toward the demonic society, and like Bush, they want to ban smoking everywhere, to erect curfews at night where young people hang out, to raise the police to clean the streets, and to shut down all clubs by raising taxes, by making everything impossible: to quiet all the streets,
and find peace in a place that reminds of old times.
Times that did not have electricity, gasoline, or anything,
and the streets were patrolled by police and ensured silence, all lights out and proper curfews after 10 pm, where only those on official business were allowed to coexist. The policemen at night assured, that all people on the streets at night had valid papers proving their valid conduct after-hours.

London and Madrid erected curfews. The USA has them
by almost every mall at night.

Curfews, it may be a beautiful word to you, but the problem is that Americans are not pro-Democracy, Democracy declares that the streets (and the whole country and government) belongs to the people, to everybody, and curfews are anything but

Re: The instant solution to global warming, zero energy (no yeah right, hydrogen combustion)

Re: The instant solution to global warming, zero energy (no yeah right, hydrogen combustion)

democratic,
in fact the problems that arose in the 21st century in Europe and in the USA are of curfews and discriminations.
A discrimination is of (coming from) old people who feel the streets are too noisy, or from parents who feel their kids shouldn't be out in the street at night.
But cannot parent everybody's kids, a parent is primarily responsible for his kid, some parents may be liberal,
others may spend their life in a Catholic institution,
but it is wrong to set curfews for all kids, because some parents... Discrimination and authoritarianism (setting one's example on others) is wrong as it is barbaric.

Curfews (an iron curtain on Democracy) violates human rights. Authoritarianism takes authority over other people's lives. Barbarism, religious control (be it of a King or of a religion) violate human rights.

But I am not a human rights activist. I am a cannibal.
I eat people. And the only reason I eat people is because there is a level.–

Should I sit the emperor on a train, built hundreds of years ago that travels at 500 kilometers per hour, and does not use any electricity, nor a fuel based engine, does not produce any smoke or steam.

Would the emperor agree to sit on this train?
He does not believe that such a train could have existed in the first place, as history clearly shows that such trains did not exist?

Re: The instant solution to global warming, zero energy (no yeah right, hydrogen combustion)

Should the emperor be led to this train?

Perhaps this may seem as an exaggeration, one of Mozart, who wanted to write a 6 hour opera.

Why would people back then want a train that travels at 500 kilometers per hour? But it is possible.

Just pull a toilet string, and make a wheel go really fast. Just pull a toilet string, and make a wheel go really fast. Just pull it really hard, and speed up the wheel. Toilet strings are disappearing in the USA. The water is not high up any more in the toilet, the pressure used to count to clean the toilet really well. Now its just those slow-flowing luxury versions.

Just pull a toilet string, and make a wheel run really fast, spin it up. Pull the string like a locomotion. But fuck, those locomotions were running at maximum energies at 30 miles an hour.
