Re: Physicists find way to 'see' extra dimensions (Forwarded)

Source: http://sci.tech−archive.net/Archive/sci.astro/2007−02/msg00050.html

- From: Dead Paul <dead_paul@xxxxxxxx>
- Date: Sat, 03 Feb 2007 14:38:48 +0000

On Sat, 03 Feb 2007 00:41:11 +0000, Andrew Yee wrote:

> University Communications
> University of Wisconsin−Madison
> Madison, Wisconsin
>
> Contact:
> Gary Shiu, 608−265−3285
>
> February 2, 2007
>
> Physicists find way to 'see' extra dimensions By Jill Sakai
>
> Peering backward in time to an instant after the big bang, physicists at > the University of Wisconsin−Madison have devised an approach that may help > unlock the hidden shapes of alternate dimensions of the universe.
>
> A new study demonstrates that the shapes of extra dimensions can be "seen" > by deciphering their influence on cosmic energy released by the violent > birth of the universe 13 billion years ago.

More crap.
Hypothesis piled upon hypoythesis with occasional minor unrelated observational "support" that would in all likelyhood be better used supporting a reality based phyics of the universe.

−−

___ ________ ___ ___ ___ __ ____
/ _ \/ __/ _ | / _ \ / _ \/ _ |/ / / / /
/ // / _// __ |/ // / / ___/ __ / / _/ / / /__
/____/___/_/ |_/____/ /_/ /_/ |_____/____/

.