Is our star (the sun) part of a binary star system? If so, where can I find some information. I tried google and wikipedia, but no luck.

Our Sun is part of a binary galactic system. Our galaxy is colliding with the andromeda. A long arm has reached and connected with Andromeda, an arm of 500 million stars reach out 20 galaxy distances. The larger Andromeda galaxy is sucking our galaxy already. That galaxy is so huge, in a billion years not much will be recognized from our galaxy's appearance. Our Sun will be binary, trinary with billions of Stars. Life began 3 billion years ago. The merging of the two galaxies will last 3 billion years. After that we will not be binary galaxies. But technology is evolving, people are able to leave to safer planets, to ensure survival by spreading in the Universe, to turn planets into having a climate and life carried through many lightyears.

The nearest star is 4 lightyears away. That star is not binary to our Sun. Universe. How can the Universe be 13 billion years old if the collision of our galaxy with Andromeda takes 3 billion years, and looking at it, these two galaxies are so miniascule compared to the size of the Universe. It just doesn't make sense that a big bang occurred. NASA. The final frontier. We are the observers of space. We BOLDLY go where none have gone before, and are burned like witches for words unrecognized by any scientist. We are the human. Our captain is the brain. Should we stand humiliated and face fired by torching we shall understand that we live amongst a primitive specie who finds luck more important than knowledge.

Knowledge takes the racist nowhere. In days of slavery the situation was the same. Knowledge meant power and guns and not of hyooman. Who are we, cannibals who eat people and want world war? We are not nobodies. We are miserable people.

The way to disfigure, to evade, to misuse, to pursue, to label, to discard, to divide Iraq and use that as legitimate federal takeover of all matters in the face of the world, conquer with baseball bats. We are miserable people from the sister Sun, Neanderthals with larger brains, and as that with a more gentle, humble nature with feelings. Yes our Sun is not far away, we live on a planet, brought here by aliens when we faced extinction by homo sapiens 25 thousand years ago our last ones were brought here by aliens who watch over the skies. This Sun is small, it has one planet. Aliens gave us forests where we can walk naked. This planet is more bluish than Earth, it's atmosphere is dense, the continents have less clear lines from space. As hunters we came. We wrestled our catch and lived lives reminding of cowboys today. But 25 thousand years later a man sensed that it could be possible that we are not alone. Is there anybody out there in this Google Bush submerged racist federalist homo guns rule the world and mind sight post-revolution I/O identitiless disintegrated people against people world?

WHERE IS MY HUMAN FRIEND WHO SEES A FACE OF ENCOUNTER NOT AS A DIME? Aliens will not win war on alienism, it was the US government who probed aliens. The blame always established on the other. I WANT MY EARTH BACK!

And what do we find? A federally controlled world of takeover, ethnically discriminating policies by white people, gib bogernment powder to the submerged racist rule of law, God save the King, super-barbarism, and eyes of leadership colonizing the world under myserious primitivity, while we evolved in peace. We do not intrude, we do not make noises on our barbecues with kitchen tools before preparing for dinner as they bring in the hyooman scum. Oo oo. That's right. We are not human rights activists for your species, we are cannibals, we eat people.
