To me it reminds me of this music, where my AI (what was it called) drives by talking.

It's horrible what psychos can do so cold-bloodedly, http://www.geocities.com/gmbajzar/sounds/iKEY\_mp3\_45.mp3

Reminds me of the War Memorial in Korea: <http://img373.imageshack.us/img373/6012/warmemo5kj.jpg>

I don't know who this guy is, I made a quick photo. <http://web.simmons.edu/~asist/news/2006/i/030806b.jpg>

I can argue: Simply put, if copyrighted materials make in on Google Groups, who is responsible? The general idea is that threads expire and go away after a month of it's last use, or maybe two weeks for some other servers, I've seen newsgroup readers that kept messages only for a week after it's last contribution. The thing to erect a monument and profile all as big brother, create an environment that all are watched is mentally ill. Google sees money in that, and other products like Streetview reflect a big brother disorder. Big brother remind of times of great systems not caring of anything but of their own militarily driven dominations, characteristics of the mid-20th century and of later communisms, socialisms till the late 80's, as well as Stalin the great, some things lived as great and as that, you know, things were characteristic of people having zero worth in general and government being big and people are watched and the polit-buro is busy. A dictatorial eye set on the landscape of politics, people become watched, and things are not what human rights would believe as normal. Human rights is something of an existence these days. A mindset seen in military dictatorships, people are followed. This monumental mentality becomes a stalking giant, present still in many of today's cultures as a

Re: Would you hire me Google, I have a Summa Cum Laude in computer science repressive and closed-minded machine of power sitting relentlessly on the society.

Sure there is a difference between: militarily repressing and psycho-pervasion and blackmail. Yet human rights does clearly define aspects of criminal inquiry of arts as humanity as crimes against humanity. Pervasion of piracy can get one that and does represent that madness in regards to taking possession as a criminal quality playing role as a psychopathic illness. Criminal possession is the tendency of psychopaths. In Austria a 10 year old girl was kidnapped and held in a tiny dark place deep beneath his home for 8 years until one day she escaped. A possessing nature of control plays dictatorial qualities in our history. These are people in power for money who are deranged.

The long possession of policies over North Korea by it's leader, and policies mean everything at Google. An energy that comes in with a tendency for long possessions and it aims to keep that power.
