coal and steaming boiling

ships were now
powered by a dark smoke

Meanwhile in other parts of the world time is stopped.
On December
31, 1999, people in Africa were sitting silently by their huts and there was no sign of a celebration, while cities in Europe and around the world gave the largest firework displays they ever imagined. In some parts of Africa 1 in 7 women die in birth-related complications and time seems to remind of the same conditions that were present thousands of years ago. In one part of the world there is a fully developed welfare system as in Ireland where 1 in 60 thousand women
die in birth related complications, on other parts conditions are of the most primitive. In these countries in Africa half the population has AIDS as well. Militants play soccer with cut off heads.

Bush wants the idea that Capitalism will solve such problems.

In the United States 1 in 4600 women die in birth related
complications,
a number much lower than in Europe in general, one that equals to the level in second of women dieing in birth related complications in the poorest countries in Europe where people make 30 dollars a month.

One finds a huge gap between low-end second world countries as the USA and third world countries.

Second world rich countries. Hungary reached the official top position with salaries in the $200 range compared to $30 in the contra US, the SU. Hungary stood as the port between the East and the West as it opened doors to East Germans to travel to the West and ignited a mass violation to the rule that East Germans were not allowed to travel to the West. Days later in Berlin, millions stood and brought power. A single flaw where thousands, tens of thousand, hundreds of thousands suddenly were able to flee East Germany and through Hungary where East Germans were allowed to travel they crossed up to Austria and then to Germany. It was all about timing that caused the fall of the East block in Europe.

What has happened in East Germany since? This is a man's world.
30 percent of women moved to West Germany and most men ended up living where they did in their home towns...

Everything is about timing, and Bush knows that.

When Hungary opened borders for East Germans and broke an old agreement that blocked East Germans access to the West, East Germany didn't stand as Bush that such acts are considered an act of war from Hungary's side
against East Germany. Young people acted in days and finished the job.

East Germany would have banned exit completely to East Germans. The idea of East and West was completely flawed now. That was the idea of hard-line systems to keep the system without flaws, and flaws were not allowed and a passport system was in place, and in larger places like in Russia maintained even between cities.

typo: Soviet Union, not Russia.

Bush doesn't like change. He has that face. Changes give rise to flaws.

Bush many times reminded the world during the Iraq war that the United States will not change and he is head.
