the port between the East it opened doors to East Germans to travel to the West and ignited a mass violation to the rule that East Germans were not allowed to travel to the West. Days later in Berlin, millions stood and brought down the wall as a flaw took flaw where thousands, tens of thousand, hundreds of thousands suddenly were able to flee East Germany and through Hungary where East Germans were allowed to travel they crossed up to Austria and then to Germany. It was all about timing that caused the fall of the East block in Europe.

What has happened in East Germany since?
This is a man's world.
30 percent of women moved to West Germany and most men ended up living where they did in their home towns...

Everything is about timing, and Bush knows that.

When Hungary opened borders for East Germans and broke an old agreement that blocked East Germans access to the West, East Germany didn't stand as Bush that such acts are considered an act of war from Hungary's side
against East Germany. Young people acted in days and finished the job.

East Germany would have banned exit completely to East Germans. The idea of East and West was completely flawed now. That was the idea of hard-line systems to keep the system without flaws, and flaws were not allowed and a passport system was in place, and in larger places like in Russia maintained even between cities.

typo: Soviet Union, not Russia.

Bush doesn't like change. He has that face. Changes give rise to flaws.

Bush many times reminded the world during the Iraq war that the United States will not change and he is head.

Flaws. Flaws are what schools teach us against. Our flaws are filled in.
I have a Summa Cum Laude.
