

Re: Memes on social networks

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.bio.evolution/2007-11/msg00192.html>

- From: Lorentz <drosen0000@xxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 24 Nov 2007 16:21:28 -0500 (EST)
-

On Nov 23, 1:51 pm, Tim Tyler <seemy...@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

Sorry – but I just had to post this: I have enough trouble with relationships as it is ;-)

--

I would suggest people don't follow this link. It may contain a virus, Trojan horse, worm or some other nastyware. I strongly suggest the moderator take this questionable post off the forum. It doesn't add to the discussion of evolution, controversial or otherwise. It presents some risk. The scariest part about it is how easy it would be to click on the link. The urge to click may be faster than rational thought. Then say goodbye to your hard drive.

Sorry, Tim. I am almost sure that you meant no harm. It is amusing, but I don't think you really want to be responsible for crashing somebodies hard drive (including your own). It would be funnier if you changed the name so it wasn't a real link.