Just finished reading the "report" from the site above. As one might expect from the name of the site it is mostly WalMart bashing. In the "report" they state that it would be possible to pay each worker a $1.00 per hour more if they only tacked on a .5% price increase. There is *no* indication how they came up with this number. Co-incidently it was this very statement made my one of my friends that got me interested in this issue. Funny how things have a way of coming back to their orgin.

Thanks for any help.
