

Re: Don't Forget Mises -- and Dump the Third Way!

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.econ/2004-09/0272.html>

From: michael price (nini_pad_at_yahoo.com)

Date: 09/06/04

Date: 6 Sep 2004 08:35:09 -0700

Albert <alwagner@tcac.net> wrote in message news:<10j8urqfd17cp80@corp.supernews.com>...

> michael price wrote:

> <snip>

> > *What we cannot do without is the freedom that causes > > such a class to arise. By forbidding those trades that > > allow proprietors whose contribution to actual material > > production is non-labour you forbid what is essential > > to efficient economic organisation. You forbid the sale > > of capital goods by those that produce them, and thus in > > effect forbid their production. You forbid the purchase of > > labour by those who can use it more productively than the > > labourer and thus forbid the sale of it by those who lack > > the capital or organisation to use it most efficiently.
> > You forbid freedom of contract and therefore all freedom.*

>

> Wow. It doesn't take much to get your imagination spinning, does > it? (Pssst...this is a strawman. No one said or implied what > attribute)

Actually it's exactly what Ron Allen has been proposing for years liar. He is specifically against a) the right to buy labour consensually, b) the right to contract, c) the right to own capital except what is "needed" and that conditional on continued
"need" etc. Oh and BTW thanks for the snippage.

>

> <snip>