

Re: China GDP data corrupt [working paper]

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.econ/2005-01/1286.html>

From: raylopez99 (raylopez99_at_yahoo.com)

Date: 01/20/05

Date: 20 Jan 2005 10:56:57 -0800

There are a number of implications to China's GDP being less than what is often quoted. For one thing, and perhaps foremost, the incessant pressure the US is putting on China to revalue their renminbi from 8.2765 : 1 to something lower is wrong, as China has plenty of unused demand in their own country (the rural sector).