

Re: more electoral defeats for the feudalists

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.econ/2006-11/msg00249.html>

- From: peter@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx (Peter Bjørn Perlsø)
 - Date: Sat, 25 Nov 2006 19:23:31 +0100
-

ruetheday@xxxxxxxx <ruetheday@xxxxxxxx> wrote:

Bob Kolker wrote:

Peter Bjørn Perlsø wrote:

That must been in the early years of Mises. :=)

From the standpoint that coercion is principally bad, it follows that government is also bad.

Which gets us back to necessary evil.

Anyone who thinks government is inherently good should read the first five pages of –Common Sense– by Tom Paine.

Bob Kolker

Necessary != inherently good. Government is neither inherently good nor inherently evil. All concentrations of power, be they in government or private institutions are, however, inherently risky.

Hear, hear.

—
regards , Peter B. P. – <http://titancity.com/blog>
<http://markedspartiet.dk>, <http://macplanet.dk>
<http://siad.dk>