

sci.electronics.basics: Re: LEDs in flashlights?

Re: LEDs in flashlights?

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.basics/2004-07/0742.html>

From: dan (notme_at_privacy.net)

Date: 07/18/04

Date: Sun, 18 Jul 2004 14:05:26 GMT

What's that Lassie? You say that DaveC fell down the old sci.electronics.basics mine and will die if we don't mount a rescue by Sat, 17 Jul 2004 08:17:11 -0700:

>Such as this one:

>

><http://www.brightguy.com/detail.html?cart=1090077700192795&sku=OPA3W>

>

>how are the LEDs configured? Are they paralleled? Each with a series >resistor? Regulator?

>

>In this application, the source is 2.4-3.0 volts, depending on type of cell.

>Any idea?

They use a switching power supply. Ask about it and other LED drivers here:

<http://www.candlepowerforums.com/ubbthreads/ubbthreads.php>

--

Dan