

Re: Power Measurement: Watts Vs. Volts

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.basics/2005-08/msg00412.html>

- From: Rich Grise <richgrise@xxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Fri, 12 Aug 2005 19:51:04 GMT
-

On Fri, 12 Aug 2005 09:54:24 -0700, tlbs wrote:

> Dr. Bowey wrote:

>>Are you just ranting or responding to a post? It's hard to tell when you >>don't quote anything (such as above).

>

>>Go away and read up on board etiquette.

>

> In the context of the thread, I was the 3rd poster, answering the > unanswered questions in the primary post. I would think in context my > post was obvious. I guess I was wrong. Yes, I can paste text from > that to which I am responding (as you can see, above), but in this case

> I didn't think it was necessary.

>

> I don't know any other way to read these boards, other than by > thread-context. If there is a way to read my post as an isolated > entity, then what you say makes sense. So my question to you is: how > is it that you can read my post as an isolated entity, yet I read them > as whole threads (10-posts-at-a-time)?

Because you're using google. Google wants to pretend that USENET is some kind of chatroom, which it isn't.

Real newsreaders quote context by default. But you need a real newsserver, which should be provided by your ISP.

Good Luck!

Rich

• References:

- ◆ Power Measurement: Watts Vs. Volts

◇ From: Kaimbridge

- ◆ Re: Power Measurement: Watts Vs. Volts

◇ From: tlbs

- ◆ Re: Power Measurement: Watts Vs. Volts

◇ From: Don Bowey

Re: Power Measurement: Watts Vs. Volts

◆ Re: Power Measurement: Watts Vs. Volts

◇ From: tlbs

- Prev by Date: Re: Need help with these basic electronics question?
- Next by Date: Re: Right resistor for high power LED for sound reader?
- Previous by thread: Re: Power Measurement: Watts Vs. Volts
- Next by thread: Re: Power Measurement: Watts Vs. Volts
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread