or should i set the option to "not include original message"?

You are supposed to review the quoted text and clip out any parts that is not needed to remind others what you are replying to, before you post.

Yep, pruning the quoted text is also good. And often lacking in this group.

I think that some of the posters would benefit from switching to Pan; you get a warning dialog if the "message is mostly quoted text" (and also for "some lines are more than 80 columns wide" and "crossposting without setting Followup-To").
