

Re: OT: Wheeeeeee! New PSpice Benchmarks – LTSpice Data Added

Source: <http://sci.tech–archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.cad/2004–08/0298.html>

From: John S. Dyson (toor_at_iquest.net)

Date: 08/31/04

Date: Tue, 31 Aug 2004 01:26:45 +0000 (UTC)

In article <HbPYc.13645$yO3.9297@newssvr27.news.prodigy.com>,

"Mike Engelhardt" <nospam@spam.org> writes:

>>>> My (older) 3GHz P4/LTspice combination beats your

>>>> Athlon/PSpice10.0.0i with a time under

>>>> 90seconds using this executable:

>>>> <http://ltspice.linear.com/software/P4scad3.exe>

>>>>

>>> So why isn't P4scad3.exe part of your distribution?

>>

>> I am going to rudely make a suggestion and answer

>> your question to Mike:

>>

>> When doing software, trying to maintain/test two versions >> of the code can significantly increase the effort. The >> effort would definitely not be twice as big, but it >> certainly would cost more time for testing.

>

> Plus it increases the size of the distribution.

> Some people still download LTspice with a modem.

> It isn't distributed on CD. Everything about

> LTspice has been historically conscientious of > the BW required to download.

>

>> PS: I'd like to see a normally available P4 version, >> but I understand numerous reasons why not -- even if >> the reasons is that Mike chooses not to :-).

>

> There's usually a P4-specific version available, > but sometimes you have to e-mail to ask where to > find it.

>

Anyway, I am definitely in the mode that I don't look the gift-horse in the mouth :-). I am very pleased with your product.

John