

sci.electronics.components: Re: [MAC+PHY] 10Mbit in a small package using an SPI interface?

Re: [MAC+PHY] 10Mbit in a small package using an SPI interface?

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.components/2004-06/0279.html>

From: Antti Lukats (antti_at_case2000.com)

Date: 06/25/04

Date: Thu, 24 Jun 2004 17:22:26 -0700

"Markus Meng" <meng.engineering@bluewin.ch> wrote in message news:40dae42d$2_3@127.0.0.1...

> Hi all,

>

> I was looking for a 10MBit ethernet mac+phy chip that allows to > communicate over an SPI port. Is someone aware of such a device?

there is no SPI but W3100A from wiznet has I2C

well it requires additional phy chip :(– new version should have it integrated but doesnt seem to be available

http://www.wiznet.co.kr/e_iinchip/index_e.htm

Antti