USENET is broken. It was designed for an era when intelligent, educated people used it to get real work done. It is highly vulnerable to exploitation by degenerates, and it should surprise no one that this has happened.

I'd hate to throw the baby out with the bathwater as it is otherwise a great medium for discussion/consultation.

If the important groups were made moderated, would that not solve most of the problem?

Removing posts from Google would fix most of the problem.
