

Re: US digital terrestrial TV a disaster?

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.design/2004-06/4324.html>

From: YD (yd.techHAT_at_techie.com)

Date: 06/29/04

Date: Tue, 29 Jun 2004 00:50:21 -0300

On Fri, 25 Jun 2004 17:51:11 +0100, ddwyer <dd@ddwyer.demon.co.uk> wrote:

>In article <tq7nd05gs19vi2mc65kh52n7ukthr5usqd@4ax.com>, PaulCsouls
><paulcsouls@worldnet.att.net> writes
>>Sounds about right. The major movie studios, wireless service >>providers, and the cable and satellite companies are all the same >>companies.
>In the UK we are catching up with the US as per the number of channels >available.
>Assuming that there is a fairly fixed revenue for programming the money >available for the program material is 1/the number of channels. So our >program quality is deteriorating to US levels.
>High definition rubbish is still rubbish.

Around here the free channel programing is so atrocious I'm fairly certain it'a a plot to force the move to paid serice.

– YD.

--

Remove HAT if replying by mail.