

Re: If Kerry is elected...

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.design/2004-10/4289.html>

From: Fred Bloggs (nospam_at_nospam.com)

Date: 10/16/04

Date: Sat, 16 Oct 2004 05:45:41 GMT

John Larkin wrote:

> On Sat, 16 Oct 2004 05:12:05 GMT, Fred Bloggs <nospam@nospam.com>

> wrote:

>

>

>>

>>John Larkin wrote:

>>

>>

>>>That's what any good manager does. Only insecure people insist on >>>surrounding themselves by people who are dumber than they are.

>>>

>>>John

>>

>>What's this smarter/dumber stuff- what kind of insecure idiot would even >>make a comparison with himself like that? It's about as relevant as >>wondering "is he/she taller than me?"- pathetic.

>

>

> You don't believe that some people are smarter than others?

Once you cross a certain threshold of complexity, it is the performance that matters. If the work is so specialized, you've personally lost the ability to judge any other measure.

> If you > don't, why do you keep calling people idiots?

I only call you and a few select others "idiots".

>

> I work with, and employ, people who have analytic and business skills > far beyond anything I can ever hope to have. I let them do the heavy > thinking. It's fun - usually - to work with very smart people.

>

> But everything I do is wrong, isn't it?

sci.electronics.design: Re: If Kerry is elected...

If that's what keeps your boat afloat then go for it.