

Re: If Kerry is elected...

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.design/2004-10/4377.html>

---

From: Fred Bloggs (nospam_at_nospam.com)

Date: 10/16/04

Date: Sat, 16 Oct 2004 15:57:50 GMT

John Larkin wrote:

> On Sat, 16 Oct 2004 12:56:09 +0200, "Frank Bemelman"

> <f.bemelmanx@xs4all.invalid.nl> wrote:

>

>>> Simple-minded is shrieking and name-calling and calling people idiots >>> because they don't agree with you.

>>

>> In general yes, but there is nothing wrong with calling people idiots

>> when they are. But your eyes are glued.

>

>

>

> What a lovely example of Liberal Logic (if you'll pardon the > oxymoron): "Freedom of speech is right for me, because I'm right, but > not for you, because it's obvious to me that you are wrong."

>

> Hell, that's a lot easier than thinking.

>

> John

>

If you want to avoid being called what you are, i.e. idiot, then you could try acting like a non-idiot. Most of the anti-Bush posts have been backed up by factual support. It is only the Larkin, Seim, Clarence, Durban crowd of morons who litter the NG with a bunch of superficial drivel and unsubstantiated slander. Take your "craggy faced" something or another remark about Kerry- yeah that sure is reasonable discourse.