What statements in particular do you have in mind? A victory for Kerry will be a victory for bipartisan government restoration to mend the damage done by the incompetent idiot Bush and his ever shrinking circle of clueless ideologues. A vote for the GOP is a vote for a criminally incompetent autocrat, and a vote for Kerry is a vote for an executive bipartisan coalition. Only a simple idiot would think the race boils down to two personalities. The word coming out of DC is not good– this Bush character is becoming more and more irrational and pushing what few ideologues who remain out of his inner circle of nutcase prayer session idiots. The criminally incompetent Bush is waiting until after the elections to ask for another trillion dollar increase in national debt (his second trillion dollar increase BTW) and $70B *more* for Iraq on top of the $25 already budgeted for this FY- which Pentagon projects to be bare minimum- bringing the Iraq total to $225B, and an additional 40,000 troops for the bogus elections there. Army recruitment is dropping like a rock-already at 30% shortfalls, and servicemen are successfully suing against the illegality of the indefinite extensions of service due to fact that no war has been formally declared. It takes quite a monumental incompetent to bring America to its knees but Bush has done it-everything is coming apart at the center- there will be massive government shutdowns across the board and possibly default. Congress should exercise their authority and shut the whole damned thing down and institute immediate impeachment proceedings to get rid of Bush ASAP. You watch and see, something like this WILL happen. The US is a system of checks and balances, the President is NOT a dictator, and the idiot will stress that architecture to something unprecedented in American history-Bush WILL be ejected one way or the other. The most orderly process is simply to vote him out and then lame duck him into oblivion. This has nothing to do with spin, this has nothing to do with politics, this has everything to do with the most incredibly incompetent fraud to ever gain control of the White House.
