

Re: XP's ugly Start button

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.design/2005-02/1276.html>

From: Guy Macon (<http://www.guymacon.com/>)

Date: 02/05/05

Date: Sat, 05 Feb 2005 14:51:57 +0000

classd101 wrote:

>

> Guy Macon <_see.web.page_@_www.guymacon.com_> wrote...

>> ...is just one more reason to switch to Linux.

>>

>> Here is a much better reason to switch to Linux:

>>

>> <http://www.google.com/search?q=gates+focus+interview>

>

> An even better reason is because updates will only be available for > those with legal versions :) I'm sure there'll be a work around > though.. ahem.

I wouldn't know. Every byte on my computer is 100% legal.

I am, however, concerned about Microsoft's announcements that pirates will no longer be able to get updates. Buggy Microsoft products don't just affect the end-user; the compromised computer often becomes a spam-spewing zombie that affects us all.