

Re: A Product Design Invitation

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.design/2005-06/msg00492.html>

---

- From: Al Borowski <al.borowski@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Sat, 04 Jun 2005 09:22:46 +1000
-

Guy Macon wrote:

Frank Bemelman wrote:

Editing messages is the bloody limit.

...would be, if not for the fact that it isn't true.

I do thank you and Bob Stephens, though. Accusing someone of editing messages,

Well, you did edit a message to insert a little note at the bottom. Or did

"===== MODERATOR'S COMMENT:
If the need is there, someone is going to meet it... :) "

Appear by itself?

being a Nazi, etc. is an excellent example of why someone who desires to have a civil discussion might wish to use a moderated m=newsgroup. The worse you act up the better getting away from you looks. Thanks!

Have fun in your group. It takes hard work to get the critical mass needed, and there is a long way to go.

Re: A Product Design Invitation