

Re: Any cheap small log potmeters <50 ohms?

Re: Any cheap small log potmeters <50 ohms?

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.design/2006-01/msg04571.html>

- From: martin griffith <mart_in_medina@xxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Wed, 25 Jan 2006 22:59:11 +0100
-

On Wed, 25 Jan 2006 19:20:14 GMT, in sci.electronics.design Joerg <notthisjoergsch@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

>Hello Spehro,

>

>>

>> In the old days, CTS would make whatever we wanted. Just pop in and >> have a word with their engineers, place a reasonable minimum order and >> the stuff would be ready in a few weeks. You can probably still do >> that- but not in North America.

>>

>

>Haven't found anything under 100ohms at CTS. Long term if this goes in >series production it will be a custom pot. Probably one of those dual >paste screening deals like we use with hybrids.

>

>Regards, Joerg

>

><http://www.analogconsultants.com>

have a chat with Omeg, they seem to be a small helpful firm that might have a low MOQ

<http://www.omeg.co.uk/index.html>

martin

.

- Prev by Date: Re: OT: Robbie Burns Day
- Next by Date: Re: Power Supply Design
- Previous by thread: Re: Any cheap small log potmeters <50 ohms?
- Next by thread: Picaxe line restrictions?
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread