But, yesterday I bought a DVD/HDD video recorder from LG. I have not tried everything yet, but sofar it is brilliant. Excellent menus, well structured, easy to understand, does what it should do. Magnificent piece of engineering, and cheap too, at 250 euro.

These menus are usually designed by software engineers. Nobody likes to do user interfaces, so the guys right out of school get the job. Sometimes the guy out of school has a clue, or they actually do some user testing before release. You got lucky. Most of the ones I've seen recently are crap.
