

Re: sanding off chip markings?

Re: sanding off chip markings?

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.design/2006-06/msg02180.html>

- From: mrddarrett@xxxxxxxxxx
 - Date: 9 Jun 2006 16:12:36 -0700
-

Pooh Bear wrote:

Joerg wrote:

When we had those "gray-outs" there were people who found themselves unable to open their garage doors. They just didn't know how.

The mind boggles !

Sure does. But, I learned the hard way that the garage door opener gears have to be lubed annually, otherwise the (plastic) gears will grind themselves to dust...

Let others learn from my error!

Gear kit look something like this:
<http://www.bizrate.com/oid18265308.html>

Others could not use their phones because they had managed to eradicate the last old non-cordless set.

And the instructions warn you about that too ! RTFM

What, the cell phone batteries were dead?

We just fired up the old Weber, hung some beer in the pool to keep it cold and had a jolly good time.

Re: sanding off chip markings?

Re: sanding off chip markings?

Best answer.

Graham

Alas, my brownout was during the night... but I'll keep this in mind for the next daytime brownout.

Michael

.