This idea has been percolating in the back of my brain for a while. It was brought to the surface reading an article today about anti-suicide TV ads. This is only a seed idea, and the people in adverting may do a lot of versions of it.

The scene shows a young Arab boy walking into a crowded market with a bomb under his coat. After he detonates it, the usual carnage is shown.

As others come in to the area to help the wounded and respectfully carry off the dead, his body is left in the sun to the ravages of insects and animals. Finally, bulldozers come to clean up the area and his corpse is shoveled in with the rest of the debris.

This could be followed by some dramatic after-life scenes where he is denied entry to Heaven and is condemned to perdition.

The world may be saved, this time, not by our brave military, but by our unique ace-in-the-hole – Hollywood California!

You're way too brainwashed by western propaganda to have a clue– that type of imagery will be received as a great insult to a religious belief and will only incite more violence. The suicide bombers are revered as martyrs and their actions set an example for others to follow. Your little tinsel-town cartoon pales in concept to the Roman practice of feeding the Christians to the lions in a public circus, and we see how well that worked– as the majority of the free west is now Christian– 2000 years later. The Israeli practice is to identify the bomber remains and then go after his/her family, demolishing their home, and possibly killing all the family members with a rocket attack. You're going to see a lot more bloodshed in the coming years and it will be coming here.
